School reviews Transgender books for Children

"A northern California school board has decided to reconsider its book-sharing policy," reports CaliforniaFamily.org.

Parents were alarmed "after a kindergartner made national news last summer when he asked his teacher to read a book about transgenderism to his class. A 5-year-old boy, at the behest of his parents, asked his teacher to read 'I am Jazz' to his Rocklin Gateway Academy charter school last June to help the class accept his transition into a girl identity. The other parents didn't hear about it until some of their children came home scared and confused.

"Parents rallied together last September to ask the charter school board, directly overseeing the school, to adopt a notification and opt out policy requiring parents to be notified when issues of gender identity and sexual orientation were taught in class, with the option to opt their children out of those lessons.

"The charter school board rejected their proposal and instead adopted a policy which states teachers will 'endeavor to notify' parents of controversial topics discussed in class before or after they happen. What was considered 'controversial' would be left up to teachers and administrators to decide.

"At least 90 students left the school as a result, but some parents haven't given up their fight for parental rights."

[Dr. Chaps' comment: The school will 'endeavor to notify' parents their children are being mentally abused in school? Not enough. Parents should keep children home until abusive teachers are fired permanently for promoting sexual confusion to minors.]

Let's petition Congress to make all school children safe from leftist bullying.

Teacher suspended after promoting Transgenderism to 11-year olds

"Concerned Christian parent Sirell Fiel of New York shared on Facebook last week a video describing — and condemning — a controversial homework project assigned to his seventh-grade child. The project, Fiel said, graphically detailed transgenderism and gender identity," reports The Blaze.

"At the time of this report, Fiel's post had received more 790,000 views.

"According to Fiel, the work was wholly inappropriate for schoolchildren.

"Genital reconstruction surgery," Fiel said in the video. "Is that really something an 11-year-old kid should be learning and knowing about? No. I don't think so."

"The homework contained a handout detailing a 'genderbread person' and explained what gender identity and attraction meant.

"The assignment also listed more than 50 sexual terms and slang words and encouraged the children to study the list for testing purposes....

"The teacher who assigned the homework, a health teacher at Cambridge Central School north of Albany, New York, was put on administrative leave with pay last week after Fiel's video went viral."

[Dr. Chaps' comment: There is NO excuse for subjecting children to this, and teachers who promote immoral transgenderism to children, or recruit them into homosexuality should be fired and charged with sexual abuse of a minor. Prosecute the abusers! Thank God one dad defended his child by blowing the whistle.]
